

The Dog's Champion

A close-up photograph of three puppies looking out from a dark, textured opening, possibly a den or a hole in the ground. The puppies have brown, white, and black fur. The puppy on the right is the largest and is looking directly at the camera with its mouth slightly open, showing its pink tongue. The two puppies on the left are smaller and are looking towards the camera with their mouths also slightly open. The background is dark and textured, suggesting a natural, earthy environment.

The American Kennel Club has donated over $23 million to fund Canine Health research projects focusing on the genetics of disease, the canine genome map and clinical studies.
